

WHITFIELD IS DRY

AND THE CHURCH BELLS ARE RINGING MERRILY.

A Hotly-Contested Election, in Which the Prohibitionists Came Out Ahead by an Increased Majority.

DALTON, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—Whitfield county has again declared for prohibition by a large increased majority, the indications now being that it will be between four and five hundred.

THE VOTE HEAVY.
At this place the vote was very heavy, although the election was very quiet and orderly.

The larger part of the business men closed their houses and spent the day at the polls. This district gives a prohibition majority of sixty-three as against ten, two years ago and a wet majority four years ago.

Tunnel Hill gives a prohibition majority of eighty-one.

Trickum and Varnell give about the same.

Tilton and Cove City give small "anti" majorities.

THE DRY MEN JUBILANT.
The dry men are jubilant and are celebrating their victory by ringing the church bells.

NO MORE ELECTIONS WANTED.
It is now proposed to try to get a bill passed to stop future elections.

SHOT BY A BURGLAR.
A Terrible Struggle in Camak—Lynchings Probable.

Northwood, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—Mr. A. S. Rogers, a prominent merchant of Camak, was shot and seriously wounded this morning at 3 o'clock by a negro burglar, who had secured entrance to his store, where he was sleeping. The ball took effect between the tenth and eleventh rib on the right side, and came out at the point of the twelfth rib on the left side. The pistol the burglar used was a Smith & Wesson, thirty-eight, double acting. Dr. R. W. Hubert and one of Warren, were immediately summoned, and arrived at the scene in about an hour, and have been with Rogers all day, watching closely every change. The wounded man, in the evening, is in a very robust condition under the influence of opiates. Dr. Hubert stated to your reporter that the wound was a dangerous one, and might prove fatal, but he was hopeful of Mr. Rogers' recovery.

THE BURGLAR'S REVENGE.
Mr. Rogers sleeps in the rear room of his store. He was awakened by the noise of the burglar in the front part, and having no weapon in the room, he quietly stepped out the window and aroused Messrs. Chapman, Boatwright, and Venable to help capture the thief. On arriving at the store Mr. Rogers proceeded to investigate the noise he had heard, and as he advanced towards the side door, the burglar fired two times from the inside, the second shot taking effect on his right arm, and he was then pursued by Mr. John Chapman, who overtook and captured the scoundrel without a weapon.

THE DESPERATE STRUGGLE.
The negro shot at Mr. Chapman twice in the chase, but the brave young man never checked speed till he caught the villain, when a desperate struggle ensued. In the scuffle the malicious wretch drew his knife and would have plunged it into his captor, but Mr. Chapman was on the alert. He knocked the knife from his hand, tripped him up and then tied and carried him to Warren's jail for safe keeping in charge of Henry Mitchell.

A brave, more chivalrous deed has never been enacted, than the capture of Bob Hill, the black villain, by Mr. Chapman. Mr. Chapman is a spare made weight, one hundred and thirty and is only twenty years old. He is a native of Georgia, and weighs one hundred and thirty pounds. The burglar gave his name as Bob Hill, of La-Grange. He had in his possession three watches, six chains, suit of new clothes, a pair of new shoes, and a valuable.

LYNCHING MAY FOLLOW.
The citizens of Camak and vicinity, both white and colored, are considerably stirred up over the diabolical deed. It is believed that now that Judge Lynch will settle the case before morning. The lynch law would have been indulged in this morning had it not been for the counsel of cooler heads.

DEATH OF THE YOUNG MAN.
Later—Mr. A. S. Rogers died at 11 o'clock tonight.

THEY WANT A SCALP.

The Augusta Committee of One Hundred Demands Attention.

Augusta, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—There was a meeting of "the committee of one hundred" tonight at the exchange. The only matter before them of public interest was a resolution providing for addressing a communication to the mayor and council asking for a report from the committee appointed to investigate the action of the registry clerk in the recent municipal election. After the election the committee one hundred brought charges against the registry clerk. A committee of council was appointed to hear and investigate the charges. A sub-committee from the committee of one hundred was appointed to investigate the charges, with formulated charges and with witnesses to sustain them. Two months have since elapsed, and the investigation committee has made no report to the council. The committee of one hundred does not propose to be thus silently ignored, and will demand that the council make a deliverance of some kind in the matter.

BATTLE IS HEARD FROM.

The Missing Young Farmer of Thomas County Located.

THOMASVILLE, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—Arthur Battle, the young Thomas county farmer who mysteriously disappeared from home some months ago, has written a letter from Colorado, Texas, to his brother, stating that he is completely broken down physically and financially and wishes to return home. His brother leaves for Texas today to bring him back. Your correspondent saw his father, Rev. J. B. Battle, today, and learned the following facts. Young Battle became financially involved, and in his extreme excitement, he had mortgaged property, expecting to make it good. His troubles increased, and mortgaged and disappointed, and dreading to face exposure, he fled to the south, leaving his wife and children in the hands of his father. He was last seen in the hands of his father, who was last seen in the hands of his father, who was last seen in the hands of his father.

SHORT TELEGRAMS.

LUMBER CITY, Ga., February 6.—At 11:25 o'clock this morning the through passenger train, No. 12, from Jacksonville, Fla., to Cincinnati, at the eighty-second mile post, on the Savannah, Florida and Western railroad, left the track, caused by a track clamp being lost, and allowing the rails to spread. The Filpatrick coach company was aboard. R. T. Smith, of that company, had a rib broken, and Mrs. Kirkpatrick received injuries on the head, arms and limbs. The Atlanta and other passengers were more or less scratched up. The East Tennessee, Virginia and Georgia passenger train, No. 14, was delayed nine hours, waiting a connection with the wrecked train.

JEFFERSON, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—Mrs. Mary C. Lindsay, a dry goods merchant, who was formerly Miss Little, of South Carolina, and a first cousin of Dr. H. V. M. Miller, of Atlanta, having been bequeathed a handsome sum to her former slave, Lizzie Williams.

MOORE, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—The gripe is getting in its work here, there being some fifty cases in town. Only one case has proven fatal. Mr. George W. Holmes, daughter of Mr. Thomas A. Stone, died from this disease night before last.

BLAINVILLE, Ga., February 5.—[Special.]—John H. Reid, a promising young man of this county, who would have graduated from the Atlanta Medical college in the next semester, died yesterday and was buried here today. A young man by the name of Bowers had his hand cut off at the saw mill of Jule Hood, in Union county Saturday last.

ERANK, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—John Arnold, one of the white men shot in the riot at Moreland on January 28th, is dead from the effects of the wound received then. He was one of our county's young and most energetic farmers, and his death has almost crazed his young wife with grief, while casting a gloom over a wide circle of relatives and friends. The negro who shot him in jail at Morgan, and doubt of his safety from both law is felt by many.

IN SOCIETY'S DOMAIN. THE PHRENOLOGIST.

THE KNOWLES-HILES WEDDING AT ROME, WEDNESDAY.

Local Society Events of Interest—Mrs. Peel's Luncheon and Mrs. Freeman's Luncheon—Other Society News.

Mr. N. Addison Knowles and his bride, nee Miss Hiles, of Rome, arrived in Atlanta yesterday on a special and spent some hours in the city.

Several of the guests who went to Rome to be present at the ceremony, returned at the same time and they give an interesting account of what they all agree in calling one of the most beautiful weddings that has ever taken place in Georgia.

In order to accommodate his friends, Editor Knowles procured a special car, which started from Augusta on the morning of the wedding and when it arrived in Rome the following people were on board:

The Rt. Rev. John W. Beckwith, Episcopal bishop of Georgia, Mrs. S. E. Knowles, Mr. and Mrs. E. D. Jones, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Hamor, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Young, Mr. and Mrs. C. M. King, Mr. and Mrs. Hal T. Lewis, and Messrs. James R. Park, E. A. Coplan, and E. A. Jones, of Greensboro; Mr. and Mrs. Deny, and Mr. and Mrs. Bean, of Augusta; Miss Schaller, of Athens; Hon. Frank O'Bryan and Mr. E. A. Sanford, of Atlanta.

The wedding took place Wednesday evening at the First Methodist church, and in order to accommodate the throng of guests, the doors were thrown open at 7 o'clock, although the ceremony was not to begin until after 8. When the bridal party finally arrived there was not an inch of standing room left, and the ushers, who were Hon. Frank O'Bryan, of Atlanta, and Messrs. W. C. Sturdevant, Dr. J. Barry and Jesse R. Taylor, of Rome, were obliged to clear a passage through the people for the bridal party.

The attendants who entered with the bride and groom were Miss Rena Berry and Mr. Philip A. Green, of Greensboro; Miss Carrie Clark and Mr. P. Brooks Tobin, of Augusta; Miss Celia McWilliams, of Rome, and Mr. Charles A. Souder, of Athens; Miss Lillie Cheney and Mr. T. R. Gibson, of Augusta; Miss Mabel Sany and Mr. J. W. Sturdevant, of Rome; Mr. Addie Mitchell and Mr. E. W. Sturdevant, of Summerville; Miss Allie Cleghorn, of Summerville; and Mr. Thomas Glover, of Marietta.

The bride and groom stood under a double arch of evergreen vines, among the leaves of which beautiful roses and other bright blossoms were entwined. Bishop Beckwith read the service, and everybody who heard the solemn words as the husband and wife were pronounced man and wife, felt deeply moved.

After Mr. Knowles and Miss Hiles had been pronounced man and wife, the wedding guests went to the beautiful residence of the bride's father, where a most delightful reception was held.

Before returning to their home the bride and groom will make a tour of Florida, and will also visit Cuba.

No two young people ever began life together under more favorable auspices. Mrs. Knowles, as Miss Hiles, has been one of the belles of Rome, and possessing as she does all the traits of noble, true womanhood, she is a bride the winning whom woman make any man proud. As for the groom—Addison Knowles is one of the best fellows in Georgia, and that means one of the best in the world. He has attained and sustained an enviable reputation in journalism, and has at the same time amassed a snug little fortune. All over Georgia he is known, he is popular everywhere, and hosts of friends will join with THE CONSTITUTION in its congratulations to him and his fair bride.

The luncheon given yesterday by Mrs. Jane Freeman was one of the most charming and artistic entertainments ever seen in Atlanta. The parlors were brilliantly illuminated with gasolene lamps, and the tables were adorned with rare flowers. The dining room was a rare and enchanting picture. The hostess chose yellow, the color most rich and effective by daylight. Tall lamps, with incense burners, and tall vases, and there, and cut-glass bowls of daffodils and ferns adorned buffet and sideboard. The table was a bed of yellow blossoms. In the center was a large star of daffodils, fringed with ferns, and on either side were two large glass bowls of ferns and jonquils. The favors were daffodils tied with green ribbons. Above the table, suspended by gold ribbons, was a garland of daffodils and ferns, and the effect of the whole was indescribably lovely and effective, while the elaborate and delicious menu was most daintily served. Those present were Mrs. William Egan, Mrs. Robert E. Egan, Mrs. A. S. Steel, Mrs. Iverson, Mrs. Henry Porter, Mrs. Livingston Mims, Mrs. Joseph Thompson, Mrs. Smythe, Mrs. John Fitten, Mrs. Jesse Rankin, Mrs. Julius Brown, Mrs. Darwin Jones, Mrs. Harwood, Mrs. Edward Peters, Mrs. L. H. Thornton, Mrs. Mr. Clarke, Mrs. W. B. Lowe and Mrs. Dickson.

The young people of the Fourth Presbyterian church will have an entertainment and reception, at the home of Mr. Wall, corner of Decatur and Young streets, tonight. A programme of unusual interest will be rendered, after which refreshments will be served. A small admission fee will be charged.

Never was an entertainment more enjoyed than the charming musical given last evening by Mrs. W. L. Peel to Mrs. Robertson, of New York. It was a source of regret that the prevailing influenza prevented the honored guest from giving her charming voice to the evening's pleasure.

Mrs. Robertson, during her residence in Atlanta was the life and inspiration of a most cultivated musical circle. It was through her efforts that the Rosini club, the largest and most brilliant musical organization of the day, was organized, and those of her old friends last evening were charmed to have her again among them.

Most appropriate to the occasion were the decorations and favors. The refreshment table had diagonally across its center a strip of pale green satin, upon which was artistically painted in gold and brown some bars of "Auld Lang Syne." The decorations were all in white and green, and crystal candelabras, with white waxen tapers, shed a soft light upon the scene. The souvenirs were strips of white and green ribbon, on which were painted in gold a bar from the favorite song of the guest for whom it was intended.

Those who were musicians had upon their ribbons a bar of the song of instrumental piece which the hostess deemed they rendered best.

Mrs. Robertson was given "Auld Lang Syne." Mr. Sternberg, a bar from his own beautiful, "Staccato." Mr. Bartl a bar from his "riddle song," which is so well known and beloved, and on each musician being remembered in this clever and delightful way. "Dixie" was given Governor Gordon.

After the charming and quickly passed in music and conversation and many of the talented musicians present gave delightful proof of their accomplishments in vocal and instrumental music. Among those invited to meet Mrs. Robertson were: Governor and Mrs. Gordon, Mr. and Mrs. Burton Smith, Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Grant, Mr. and Mrs. Julius Brown, Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Smith, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Collier, Judge Eskin, Hon. Henry W. Hilliard, Colonel and Mrs. Carter, Captain William Page Carter, Captain and Mrs. Milledge, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Hoke Smith, Mrs. P. R. E. Cobb, Mr. and Mrs. M. Dickson, Mr. and Mrs. E. C. Peters, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Kendrick, Mr. and Mrs. Howell Jackson, Mrs. Richards, Mr. and Mrs. Burbank, Mr. Blumenthal, Captain and Mrs. Homer Jackson, Mr. and Mrs. Sternberg, Mr. and Mrs. Baril.

A NEW CHURCH.
The members of the Methodist church who reside in the south east part of the city will meet tonight to consider the establishment of a new church.

It has been for some time evident that a sufficient number of Methodists lived south of the new capital and east of Washington street to make it feasible to build a large church. Some of those who were interested in the matter, will meet tonight at the residence of Mr. George Muse, on Capitol avenue, and some action will be taken to organize a congregation and locate the new house of worship.

Many of the gentlemen interested are wealthy, and if a church is built it will be one of the largest and finest in the city.

THE DEATH OF MR. MOORE.
Griffin, Ga., February 6.—[Special.]—Griffin is sad this evening at the announcement of the death of Mrs. Carrie Waddy, wife of Dr. John L. Moore. For sometime past Mrs. Moore had been in feeble health, but her condition was considered better yesterday and her friends had hopes of her recovery. Mrs. Moore was a consistent member of the Presbyterian church and a lady admired for her Christian character.

THE COOK COOKED.

PROFESSOR WINDSOR LECTURES AT THE GUARD'S ARMY.

He Thinks Two-Thirds of Dr. W. J. Browne Is Thrown Away—Mr. Charlie Thorne Was Made for an Artist.

Professor William Windsor, announced as "L. L. B., the eminent phrenologist and anthropologist," lectured last evening at the Gates City Guards' Army.

The audience was rather a small one, for which fact the weather was partly responsible. The lecture was a free one.

"The Science of Phrenology" was the subject. The speaker began by drawing a distinction between the science and the art of phrenology, one infallible and the other depending, as to accuracy, upon the skill with which the principals were applied in practice. Phrenology, however, skillful, could claim to be infallible in his observations. He was liable to make mistakes, just as a mathematician might make an error, though the principles of mathematics are infallible.

The scientific part of the lecture is rather too technical, with nothing particularly new or interesting—except the models. There was a ghastly array of these—a little girl's skeleton with the skull sawed open, two or three adult skulls, and charts physiological, red, green, yellow and black, of the brain and a quantity of similar apparatus.

One skull was round like a bullet. The other was long and thin. The round skull was that of a crime up, hung in Mississippi forty-six years ago for the murder of an entire family. The other skull was that of a harmless old woman, a street beggar.

The speaker then told how he had taken the two skulls and portrayed the two characters. It was remarkable the way the professor did—as the professor told.

The professor then announced that he would illustrate his methods by the public examination of two or three men, but to show that he was perfectly honest, he said he would select the audience to select a man.

"Nominate a number of men," was his plan. "Then the one that most of you know most of, nominate." Dr. W. J. Browne was nominated. "How many of you know Dr. Browne?" asked the professor.

Only three or four hands went up. "Let's have somebody you all know," said the professor. Mr. Frank Hill was nominated. Only three or four hands went up.

Then Dr. John Z. Lawshe and Dr. J. C. Avery—there were plenty of hands up, but neither could be induced to go upon the platform.

Then Dr. Browne was again called for, and consented to the examination.

SHOULD HAVE BEEN A LAWYER.
As Dr. Browne took his seat upon the platform, the professor began by measuring the top of his subject's head in two directions.

Then the fun began. "You weigh about 175 pounds. Your head is twenty-two and one-half inches around and fourteen across the crown—rather larger than the average. You have strong business elements, as your sharp nose and eyes are no slouch. There is too much concentration about you. You are intense in your feelings, and very positive. You can suffer keenly and enjoy keenly. You are not the man to put one day and be oppressed the next because of your determination and strong will. You use considerable vitality. You have acquired most of your education since you left school—since you were twenty-one years old. Is that so? Well, you have fine executive ability, with plenty of subjective intellect, without any great amount of knowledge. You don't know what you know, but what you do know, you know well. You have considerable inventive genius. You are a thoughtful, reflective man. You come of a long-lived family."

"There is plenty of fight in this man. He is the man to plan a campaign and to carry out his plans. He is not quite cautious enough, and would succeed better if he had more policy."

"You don't get credit for all the sense you've got because you don't shine. You believe in yourself. You have plenty of firmness—some people call it stubbornness. You are not quite buoyant enough, not hopeful enough. You are not an economist. Your social qualities are large. The best business for you is law. You are a good lawyer, and a better judge. The next best business is manager of some wholesale enterprise. You couldn't make success of a restaurant business. You would not succeed. You would make a fair physician. What is your profession? Dentist, eh? My dear sir, just two-thirds of you is thrown away. Two-thirds of you is wasted. You are a good quack for a dentist, and a great deal more. The business isn't large enough to use all the man. Your success at law would have been phenomenal. I make that statement without reservation."

All this while the professor was feeling Dr. Browne's head and changing his position to change his view of his profile. Then Dr. Browne went down and MR. CHARLIE THORNE was called for.

The audience by this time was thoroughly interested. "Your head is large," said the professor. "Your worst fault is that you haven't enough belief in yourself. You are over-cautious, you are apologetic. You have plenty of energy and a great deal of warmth and sympathy. You are a loving man, but you scatter it too much. You have plenty of caution. You can see danger sooner than most of men, and avoid it—not because you are afraid of it, but because you are cautious. You are naturally inquisitive and observant. You ask more questions in a day than most people. You know more than you do, because you observe a great deal and can tell what you see. You don't calculate quite closely enough. You don't save much. You are not of an accumulative turn."

"You have a great deal of artistic taste. You love beauty, whether in a woman, a picture, or a flower. You have fine taste. Your natural profession is one that will give full scope to this ability. You haven't much religion. It is spasmodic. It is a Sunday morning sort of religion. You are entirely out of your sphere, sir."

The professor then concluded with an announcement of his lectures this week and next. On Monday evening he is to tell how to choose a husband or wife.

In this connection, here is a paragraph from the professor's lecture on the subject of marriage. "His first interview with the lady who now shares his labors in the double capacity of wife and business partner was professional. Finishing an elaborate written delineation of the adaptation in matrimony, he remarked: 'Madam, when you find a gentleman as near like myself as it is possible to get, marry him! You possess all the elements of character necessary to his complete happiness and success financially, socially and physically.' His fair subject acted upon his advice literally, and it is needless to add that Professor Windsor has verified his own professional opinion."

ALL LADIES INVITED.
The Exhibition of the Charter Oak Stoves at Messrs. Hummel & Bellinger's.

A large number of ladies attended the luncheon served by Messrs. Hummel & Bellinger at their store yesterday. Mr. A. G. Lotze, of the Charter Oak Stove company, assisted the above firm in demonstrating to the people the superiority of the Charter Oak wire grates at their store. This stove probably has no equal in this country. It is constructed upon a scientific principle, and does its work satisfactorily. The heat given off is not wasted, but is revolutionized the system of cooking. Meats of all kinds can be roasted in this stove, and at the same time lose none of their juices. It has been a great success. This stove cannot be described by a reporter, but may be seen at the store of Hummel & Bellinger.

Only two days more of the exposition of this stove and its system of cooking remain. All ladies interested in the culinary art are more cordially invited to attend the luncheon served tomorrow from 10 to 5 o'clock. The choicest cakes, finest rolls, most elegant biscuits and meats of every description are served gratis. Do not fail to visit them. You will learn much that will assist you in making your home bright, happy and cheerful.

A THEATRICAL DARY GETS INTO TROUBLE.

He Calls a Cartersville Gentleman by a Fool Name Which Brings Out a Shotgun, and Finally Lands Him in Jail.

The negro who is employed to cook for the McGibney musical family has discovered that it is the part of wisdom to keep a civil tongue in his head. Wednesday night the McGibney family performed at Cartersville, and while their private car was lying on a side track the cook, who hails from Boston, entered into an argument with another gentleman of his own dusky complexion.

Mr. N. M. Diggers, the superintendent of the Cartersville waterworks, chanced to pass that way and made some remark. The colored cook from Boston immediately turned on Mr. Diggers, and among other pertinent queries, he wished to know what in Hades Mr. Diggers had to do with the matter. Mr. Diggers offered to show his connection with the argument by advancing on the cook with a club which he carried. The cook immediately retired into the car, and as he passed through the door he called Mr. Diggers a foul name which reflected on that gentleman's family.

Mr. Diggers left and in a few minutes returned with his gun, intending to admit daylight into the carcass of the impertinent cook. Just as he was entering the car he was met by an officer, who persuaded him to change his intention and lodge a complaint against the trader of his family. The cook was arrested and taken before the mayor who fined him $10.

The grand jury was in session, and a presentment of the facts to them resulted in a true bill, and yesterday the court fined the cook $50 and ordered the chains to be put on him to be employed charged just enough to make the cost of that one bad name amount to $100, which the McGibneys paid.

The cook explained to the court that in Boston people called each other pet names of that sort, and no one felt aggrieved. The court, however, refused to accept the statement, and said that he felt assured that the Bostonians did not allow even a colored cook to call them names with impunity.

ARRESTED FOR SEDUCTION.
Henry E. Pearson Sent to McDonough on a Serious Charge.

Detectives Bedford, Green and Casan arrested Henry E. Pearson at his place of employment, Traynham's factory, yesterday. He was arrested on a description given by Sheriff Glass, of Henry county.

Pearson is a gentle looking young man, and is sober and industrious. The charge on which he was arrested is a very serious one. He is accused of having seduced the wife of a young lady, Miss Green, of Henry county. She is a good family, and Pearson was added to marry her, but swore he would not do so, although he virtually acknowledged the charge.

He was carried back to McDonough by Sheriff Glass, where the case will be tried before the proper authorities.

THE MCGIBNEY FAMILY.
Tonight this interesting family of artists will give at the opera house an entertainment unique in its kind, and never seen in our city. They will appear as a band, as an orchestra, singers. Ten of them are soloists, and some are said to be equal to the best talent ever heard here. There can be no doubt as to their merits, because they come here after fifteen years of success in the north and west, and they bring with them the universal praise of the press. Their entertainment will interest the most fastidious, and can not be too much recommended to children and young people, to whom it will present a striking record of the accomplishments one can acquire in youth.

The following short extracts of exchanges will sufficiently attest what the McGibneys claim: "The most enthusiastic audience of the season welcomed the famous McGibney family last night at the opera house."

"The concert given by the McGibney family last night was simply immense. Their music is refined and classical. Each of the family is an artist with some special instruction."—Cedar Rapids, Ia., Gazette.

"Nearly sixteen hundred people jammed into the grand opera house last night to hear the famous McGibney family, and 'standing room' was the sign, and this is certainly marvelous, as Barnum's greatest show on earth was against them."—Dayton, Ohio, Democrat.

"The McGibney family need no compliments. Their fame is as broad as the continents. To have heard them is to have a line of blissful memory that reaches through all the future."—Springfield, Ohio, News.

What Scott's Emulsion Has Done!

Over 25 Pounds Gain in Ten Weeks. Experience of a Prominent Citizen.

THE CALIFORNIA SOCIETY FOR THE IMPROVEMENT OF THE SUFFERING OF VIOLENCE, SAN FRANCISCO, July 17, 1886.

I took a severe cold upon my chest and lungs and did not give it proper attention; it developed into bronchitis, and in the fall of the same year I was threatened with consumption. Physicians ordered me to a more congenial climate, and I came to San Francisco. Soon after my arrival I commenced taking Scott's Emulsion of Cod Liver Oil with Hypophosphites regularly three times a day. In ten weeks my avoirdupois went from 155 to 180 pounds and over; the cough meantime ceased. C. R. BENNETT

THE ANNUAL ELECTION

OF THE WESTERN AND ATLANTIC RAILROAD COMPANY WAS HELD YESTERDAY.

The Old Officers All Re-Elected—Meeting of Local Ticket Agents—The Kansas City's Quick Trip—Other Railroad News.

The annual meeting of the Western and Atlantic Railroad company was held yesterday morning.

There were twenty-three original lessees. There are now only seven living.

The seven living ones and the executors of most of those who are deceased have given power of attorney to Governor Brown, Colonel E. W. Cole, Mr. H. B. Plant and W. T. Allen to attend to all their interests when no quorum was present, or either any of the four persons mentioned in the absence of the others would have the right to represent their stock.

The only persons present were Joseph E. Brown and Colonel E. W. Cole, original lessees, and Mr. Wallace, of St. Louis, who represents the Thomas Allen original half-share; but the proxies were used and the meeting held.

The year's business has been very encouraging, and the showing made was a very good one. Prospects for the ensuing year are looking bright.

All the old officers were re-elected or reappointed. They are:

President—Joseph E. Brown.
Treasurer—C. T. Watson.
General manager—R. A. Anderson.
Traffic manager—Joseph M. Brown.
Auditor—J. C. Courtney.

Mr. James L. Dickey was reappointed general freight agent; Mr. Alton Auger, general passenger agent; Mr. Martin H. Dooley, roadmaster; Mr. Lamar Collier, master mechanic; Mr. William Kinyon, master car builder, and Mr. Charles Beardsley, master of trains.

This constituted a very strong combination of very faithful officers, who know their duty well and discharge it with a great deal of fidelity. Probably no road in the country has a more faithful or successful combination of officers than the Western and Atlantic.

The lease expires on the 27th day of December next, when the state will have to make some other provision.

The Ticket Agents Meet.

Yesterday, in pursuance of the call printed in THE CONSTITUTION, the railroad men met at the Western and Atlantic office in the Kimball house, to arrange for the reception of the delegates to the national association of ticket agents, who pass through here next Monday evening.

Mr. R. D. Mann, of the Western and Atlantic, was elected chairman of the meeting.

After an informal discussion, a committee was agreed upon to arrange details, issue invitations, etc.

The committee consists of Mr. R. D. Mann, chairman; Mr. James A. Adair, Western and Atlantic depot ticket agent; Albert Howell, union ticket agent; Mr. S. C. Harrell, ticket agent of the Central, and Mr. Thad C. Sturges, traveling passenger agent of the East Tennessee.

Mr. E. Beall, of the Richmond and Danville, and Mr. E. E. Kirby, of the East Tennessee, were to have been added to the committee, but it was impossible for them to be present at the meetings after yesterday.

About fifty of the best known railroad agents in Atlanta were present, and the meeting was an enthusiastic one.

It is said that the supper to be given the guests at the Kimball house, ticket agent, Albert Howell, union ticket agent; Mr. S. C. Harrell, ticket agent of the Central, and Mr. Thad C. Sturges, traveling passenger agent of the East Tennessee.

A number of ladies are coming with the party.

Railroad Cases in Court.

Three motions for new trial in three railroad cases were filed yesterday in the United States circuit court.

One is the case of Mary F. Hicks vs. the Richmond and Danville, in which the plaintiff recently secured a verdict of $2,000.

Another is the case of Miss F. L. Wilson, also against the Richmond and Danville. A verdict was returned for $100 for the plaintiff.

The third case was that of Mr. J. C. Dunlap vs. the Northeastern railroad, in which a verdict had been granted for $10,000.

None of the motions were heard yesterday.

The Richmond and Danville cases will be heard before Judge Newman next Saturday, and the motion in the Dunlap case will be heard Monday.

Quickest Time on Record.

Mr. Charles E. Harmon, general agent Central railroad, received on yesterday the following telegram from Mr. G. M. Sorrell, general manager of the Ocean Steamship company:

SAVANNAH, February 6, 1890.—Kansas City arrived at New York 5:30 p. m., yesterday. Forty-six hours from Savannah.

G. M. Sorrell, General Manager.

This beats the record.

The Kansas City's best time before this was forty-eight hours. The Kansas City is the new ship in the Ocean Steamship company's line, and not only is fitted up in the most luxurious manner for the comfort of passengers, but carries an immense tonnage. The Central and Ocean steamship people are jubilant over her remarkably fast time.

LOST HIS MONEY.

The Way a One-Legged Veteran Got Rid of His Pension.

A one-legged veteran named Davenport, from Fayette county, came to the city Wednesday and drew his pension of $100 for the last time.

He had ten dollars besides, and decided to enjoy himself. He fell in with a man named Jack Burrell, who does not bear a very enviable reputation in the police circles and the city's law-abiding citizens.

Burrell put up the cash and Davenport the good fellowship, so that betwixt the two they made a good time.

The result was very satisfactory to Burrell, but not to the veteran, for yesterday morning he went to the Ocean Steamship company's line, and not only is fitted up in the most luxurious manner for the comfort of passengers, but carries an immense tonnage. The Central and Ocean steamship people are jubilant over her remarkably fast time.

He was taken care of and he was able to account for his money. He was taken care of and he was able to account for his money.

PEARLINE.

Washing Clothes

or cleaning house with ordinary soap is like rolling a heavy stone up hill; it takes man strength and a good deal of it. The same work done with Pearline is like rolling the stone down hill—it's easy; quick; true; goes right to the mark; and with very little labor.

All dirt must go before PEARLINE. It robs woman's hardest work of its drudgery—a praiseworthy theft, by the way.

The question is—does it or does it not hurt the hands, clothes or paint? We tell you it don't—but we are interested (as well as you)—so ask your friends who use it; you'll find most of them do; the annual consumption is equal to about three packages a year for every family in the land. But better yet—get a package (it costs but a few pennies, and every grocer keeps it) and try it for yourself—your gain will be larger than ours.

Peddlers and some unscrupulous grocers are offering imitations which they claim to be Pearline, or "the same as Pearline." IT'S FALSE—they are not, and besides are dangerous.

Judge Speer Decides a Notable Case.

United States Judge Emory Speer's decision in the sensational Tutty-Ward miscegenation case will be found in another column. The facts in the case, briefly stated, are these: Charles Tutty, a white citizen of Liberty county, in this state, went with Rose Ward, of that county, a woman of African descent, to the District of Columbia, where they were married. If the two had remained in that locality, where marriages between the races are legal, they would have kept out of trouble, but they returned to Liberty county, and were indicted. The defendants asked for a removal of their case to the United States court, assigning various reasons for their request. Judge Speer refused to grant the petition and remanded the case to the state court. His opinion will repay perusal. It is luminous, strong, and tracks the law straight along.

It is, of course, possible that Tutty and his black sweetheart will make their escape, but it is a settled fact that they cannot reside in Georgia as man and wife. Judge Speer has made the law of the case so plain that a similar attempt to dodge the Georgia statute against such marriages will probably never be made again.

Electric Wires in England.

Electric lighting is a new thing in England, and the able scientists of that country are filling the magazines and newspapers full of valuable information and alarming warnings.

Charles W. Vincent, a recent writer in a British monthly, tells his countrymen that with the laying of overhead wires and underground conductors, people must be prepared to face perils heretofore unknown.

Mr. Vincent says that electricity is dangerous in three ways. When in great quantity, but of small intensity, it destroys by fusion conductors of insufficient capacity and semi-conductors.

Again, when it is of high intensity, it destroys insufficient or semi-conductors by disrupting or heating, or both, and frequently leaves its road, and marks out a new pathway.

Lastly, whenever electricity enters or leaves an electric conductor, by its mere presence in it, it evokes a momentary current of electricity in neighboring conductors. This is called induction.

The English authority quoted says that to make electric lighting safe we must have conducting wires of large size and great capacity and conductivity, perfect insulation, currents of low tension and installations for limited areas.

After reading this discouraging essay we cannot blame the Londoners if they protest against the new mode of lighting, especially when the fact is considered that it is proposed to send alternating currents through the streets of London at a pressure of from 10,000 to 15,000 volts.

It is all right—or will be. Steam frightened people when it was first introduced. It still destroys and kills, but we must have it. So it is with electricity. It is a necessity, and we are going to regulate it.

Major Serpa Pinto's Future.

The sudden popularity of Major Serpa Pinto, in Portugal, is perfectly natural under the circumstances.

It caused a thrill of pride to run through the Portuguese masses when this bluff soldier made a stand against the English in Africa for the rights of his country, and it is no wonder that he became a popular hero.

But Major Pinto is in danger. Because the Portuguese are cheering him, just now, it does not follow that he is cut out for a great general, statesman or leader. The probability is that he has seen him at his best—as a rough soldier who has the manhood to indulge in a little game of bluff with a superior power. Taking this view of the case, we must regret his weakness in yielding so far to his friends as to accept their call to the leadership of the republicans who now have designs against the throne.

Time and again, in many countries, the experiment has been tried of bringing a brave soldier to the front in politics, and many times the experiment has resulted disastrously. The new Portuguese leader may fall ignominiously like Boulanger, when he attempts the role of that gallant soldier and incapable politician. Even if he should succeed in overturning the monarchy he would probably be tempted to make himself military dictator. But we do not believe that the major will get to that point. The government liked him well enough in his place out in Africa, but when he comes home to kick up a row, it will be quite another matter.

The adventurer should be prudent. He is venturing into a new and untrodden field. It may be on the cards that he will shortly be tried by a drum head court-martial, and sentenced to be shot at daybreak. Such things have happened before.

Electing Postmasters.

The New York World is openly in favor of amending the constitution so as to make postmasters elective by the people of the postoffice districts.

The argument in favor of the change is that federal patronage is an evil of increasing magnitude, demoralizing the public service, making the president an autocrat, and interfering with executive and legislative business. Besides, it is urged that the people want for a postmaster a man liked and trusted by them, without regard to his politics. In two recent instances, at Brattleboro, Vermont, and at Newtonville, Massachusetts, the republicans followed the request of their congressmen, and expressed their preference for a postmaster at the polls. In both cases they selected democrats.

The World thinks these two elections a fair test, and strongly indorses the proposed elective programme. It would be unwise to jump to a conclusion upon insufficient data. Then, too, it should not be forgotten that while federal patronage is sometimes an evil, frequent or numerous elections are always an evil. The loss of time and labor, the money wasted, the dissipation and strife resulting from many campaigns and elections cannot be estimated.

The action of the republicans of two New England towns in selecting democrats for the postoffice does not make it very clear that as a rule the people would elect their best men to that position. It was the theory of the founders of our government that the best men would be chosen in all elections, but the facts for a hundred years or more have not sustained that theory. We have our doubts about elective postmasters.

Foreigners in New York.

The New York police report is an interesting comment on the character of the foreign population of the city. In the first place there are only 80,000 arrests now against 72,000 twenty years ago, when the city had only 940,000 people. The three-quarters of a million people who have been added to the population since, are largely foreigners, yet it does not appear that they have added to the number of arrests. On the contrary, there has been a large proportional diminution in the number of crimes. It cannot be said that detection and arrest are any less certain than they were twenty years ago. A more probable inference is that the increased efficiency of the police has been one of the factors in the diminution of crime, but the difference is so large that it cannot be wholly attributed to that. The classification of criminals is significant. Of the foreigners arrested within the last quarter, 794 were Italians, 590 were Russians and Poles, 129 were Frenchmen, 50 were Hungarians, and 19 were Bohemians. The Italians who translated the bloody order of the mafia to this country are reckoned among the worst criminals of the metropolis.

It has been the custom to attribute to the whole of the foreign population the devilish disposition of the anarchist, but these figures show that in this, as in everything else, great justice may be done by imputing to a class the sins of the worst individuals included in it. We should make the distinction between the socialists and the anarchists. The latter, who are very few, desire the annihilation of the state, the former, who are more numerous, have been educated by a strong government to the idea of paternalism, and have not grasped the idea of self-reliance in the citizen. The German government encourages the idea of state socialism, and it is not surprising that Germans who come over here should expect of the state more than it can provide in a free country. By degrees they will grow to the stature of citizenship. The anarchists are making no great headway, and after awhile they will die out.

Another Color Line Case.

In a certain school district in California a negro child sometime ago went to a white public school, and was not admitted.

The next step was a suit. The action of the board of education in refusing to admit the negro was sustained. Then the case went to the supreme court, and as the law was clear a mandate was issued to the school authorities to admit the negro.

The significance of the whole business is not in the decision of the court, because that was controlled by law, but in the action of the board of education which reflected public opinion. There are comparatively few negroes in California, and the matter is not of vital importance to that state. With public sentiment, however, firmly fixed it is not likely that the California negroes will go to white schools, or remain in them if they force their way in.

Indian Corn in Europe.

At the Edinburgh exposition, which opens in May, the American Indian corn exhibit will be a notable feature.

The lord provost of Edinburgh and Sir Thomas Clark, chairman of the executive committee, have taken a lively interest in making public the merits of Indian corn as food, of which they have heard so much, and know so little.

All this may strike our people as a singular thing, but it is a fact that in Europe the people have never shown the slightest disposition to touch an article of food which in this country needs no recommendation. Indeed, at the time of the great Irish famine in the forties, when the Americans sent over ship loads of provisions, as well as money, the half-starving people of Ireland did not take kindly to our corn meal. Scientific experts lectured and wrote about the matter, and gave instructions for cooking it, but it did not suit the European stomach. Many suffering people at that time refused to taste it, and they were encouraged by the better classes, who did not hesitate to say that Indian corn was unfit for food, and if eaten, would cause disease, and possibly death.

This is very interesting, not to say amusing, to the American who has eaten Johnny cake in Maine and pone bread in Texas, and yet it appears to be altogether inexplicable. It is to be hoped that at the Edinburgh exposition somebody will be present who will be able to teach the Scotchmen some of the simple secrets of our Georgia plantation cookery. If our ponies and doggers, etc., are given half a chance, they will win their way on the other side of the sea.

Attending the Impossible.

Speaker Reed is having trouble with his new rules.

The problem which the Maine statesman is attempting to solve is one of peculiar perplexity. He desires to formulate a set of rules under which the republicans, while they hold a majority, will have every advantage, and yet he will not give to arrange them so that they will not give a democratic majority the same benefit.

Now, Speaker Reed must have heard, even in his boyhood, old sayings to the effect that it is a poor rule that won't work both ways, and that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. From these brief maxims he should have learned the hopelessness of the task before him. No cunning trick, no double-meaning words can possibly frame rules that will mean one thing under a republican majority, and another thing under a democratic majority. The English language is equal to almost anything, but it is not the adjustable, back-action concern that Speaker Reed needs for his purpose.

It is a waste of time to attempt the impossible. The speaker and his henchmen are now brought to a point where they must provide rules for the government of the house. If they try any extraordinary experiments with parliamentary law they will certainly suffer before the fun is over. The sensible thing for them to do is to frame a good working set of rules, suited to the business of the body, and in the line of time-honored precedents. Then the business of the house will proceed smoothly, and the interests of the country will have a better showing.

If Speaker Reed secures a set of bad rules, so much the worse for him.

LA GRITTE in Atlanta has nearly worn out the stupid McGinty business.

THE REV. DR. WILD, of Toronto, has discovered that the Bible is against the annexation of Canada to the United States. We give up the idea, doctor.

DR. TALMAGE considerably got through with his gripe in Vienna. It was very gentlemanly in him not to worry his friends over here with it.

THE speaker of the British house of commons raises poultry. Our American speaker raises Cain.

SARAH BARNHART has a pet alligator. She should get an asp and train herself for the Cleopatra business.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THERE is a touch of something more than humor in the newspaper joke that a British syndicate has approached Speaker Reed with a request to name his lowest selling price for the entire country.

ALBERT S. CHONK, a Chicago lawyer, convicted of perjury in 1888, has just been pardoned. From the time of his conviction he had been allowed to remain in jail, but he could not receive his pardon without going to prison, he was sent there for ten minutes. To the astonishment of the officials, he asked for his discharge money from the state, ten dollars, and transportation. His request was granted, but when he next asked for a new suit of citizens clothes he was at once hustled off. Having been in prison ten minutes he demanded all the privileges of an old convict.

IT is all nonsense to say that the backbone of winter is broken. It never had any backbone. It has been as limber as a wet rag from the beginning. It entered with drip, then it was grip, and next it will be skip.

IT will be news to the good people of Rhode Island to learn that the headquarters of his honor, the governor, is at the Rhode Island Hotel, and that the Rhode Island Hotel is at the Rhode Island Hotel.

This is a mistake. The imperial imp is getting in his work on the republican side of the house. He has telephone connection with all the republican newspaper offices.

The newspapers are jumping on George William Curtis, for saying that the address is unfair. The Boston Herald has collected a number of opinions on the subject. Senator John Sherman says: "Mr. Curtis might as well classify the whole human race as negroes, and then say that he does controlling the newspapers of the day. Substantially the same truth is contained in the remark by President Warren, of Boston university, that he finds 'great newspapers like great men, particularly like the great men who make them.'"

The New York Tribune tells this story about General Sherman: He was in a North Carolina town just after the close of the war, and attended church one Sunday with Andrew Johnson, who was then vice-president, and one or two other prominent men. The minister was a young Irishman, and like Peter Cartwright, he seized the opportunity to "roast the great ones of this earth over the coals." His opening prayer was short, fervid, and left not a shadow of a chance for Andrew Johnson to enjoy an agreeable hereafter undisturbed by the minister's harried broadsides at General Sherman as well, and when he had finished, the minister turned to the congregation and whispered in a voice all could hear: "By—, that was a— good prayer."

It is considered certain that Senator Ingalls will be re-elected by the Kansas legislature.

GENERAL SHERMAN will be seventy years old on the 8th of February. His birthday will be celebrated at his home near Central Park, New York, by a dinner at which only his family and associate commanders will be present.

INSPECTOR BRYNES says the New York police like John Most alone because they don't want to make a martyr of him. They say that is his policy.

THE ST. LOUIS Globe-Democrat will erect a $300,000 home. It will be one of the best buildings in America.

WILLIAM B. RICHARDSON, a young Boston naturalist, has been exploring Colorado, a live volcano in Mexico. From the extreme summit of the Sierra Nevada he could look down into the crater of the volcano. There were for five hours or more sounds of activity, great clouds of vapor and gas coming up with magnificent effect and rising to a tremendous height. Richardson and his party were nearly at the top of the volcano, a great personal risk, pitching his tent at the upper line of pine trees and just below the lower lines of ash and lava. The trees above had all been burned up and were impossible to walk in the deep bed of ashes. From this point Richardson and his Indian followers could hear the sounds of the volcano. One night during the eruption they could distinguish the deep red glow of molten lava as it ran down the mountain side. Richardson was regarded by the natives as phenomenally daring, but his expedition resulted in no harm to himself or his party.

GEORGIA POLITICS.

Among the state house officers to be elected by the people this year, is commissioner of agriculture, that position having been made an elective office. Judge J. T. Henderson, who has filled the position so acceptably, is a candidate as his own successor. The indications are that the judge will have a walk over, as he has made such a splendid record as the commissioner of agriculture. We feel sure that Georgia does not afford a better man for the position, and that the judge's experience is of inestimable worth to the office. Besides his efficiency as an officer, Judge Henderson is a most genial gentleman, and is an honor to the state as a public officer.—Washington Chronicle.

Hon. J. C. G. Black, of Augusta, is getting his share of the good things now being said about prospective candidates for governor of Georgia by the newspapers of the state.

Editor Gunn, of the Cuthbert Liberal, says the people of the eleventh senatorial district are not obliged to elect a man to the senate simply because he wants to go there.

The Washington Chronicle has this to say with reference to a solution of the race problem which would attract much attention in political circles.

The race problem in Wilkes was settled a long time ago. The negroes do their work well, and are well paid for it. We do not believe there is greater prosperity among the negroes anywhere in the south than right here in Wilkes. As to subversive influences, there is no danger of equal with a superior one, such a thought, if it ever existed here, died at its birth.

The Minn. Tribune says that as a part of its state ticket Steve Clay for governor and R. T. Nesbit for commissioner of agriculture.

We don't know that we will have much to say about politics, says the Carnesville Enterprise, but we would be glad to see Hon. Patrick Walsh, of Augusta, the next governor of Georgia.

THE INSIDE FACTS.

ABOUT CONTEMPLATED CHANGES IN THE R. AND D.

Major Peyton Randolph may resign, and if he does, Look Out for Changes—About Sol Haas and Major Green.

Sol Haas, vice-president, traffic. W. H. Green, general superintendent, transportation. Here are the inside facts about the contemplated Richmond and Danville changes.

An official of that road high in authority, and one who knows whereof he speaks, says: "There is something in the rumors of changes in the Richmond and Danville. Major Randolph may resign his position of general manager, and if he does, you may look for this sort of an arrangement: Sol Haas will be made one of the vice-presidents, with entire charge of traffic, and Major Green will be given entire charge of the transportation department. Mind you, that is predicated on Major Randolph's resigning. If he takes such a step, it will be because of his failing health. Nobody could stand higher with the owners of the system than he does, and it will be only because of his bad health that there will be any change at all."

"Why is not Sol Haas made general manager?"

"Mr. Haas doesn't want it. His training has been altogether in the traffic department, and in that line he hasn't a superior on earth. And Major Green deserves just as high praise, for in the transportation department he has few equals. Haas and Green would make one of the strongest teams in the country."

But will Major Randolph resign?

The report that he fully expects to do so comes from Richmond, and though only a rumor is generally believed here.

"And when the official announcement of the change comes," added the official above quoted, "you will find that the official announcement reads about as I have put it."

Major Randolph Recovering.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding the rumor to the contrary, Major Peyton Randolph has no idea of resigning his position as general manager of the Richmond and Danville. At least, this is the information given out at the headquarters of the road, here. Major Randolph has been confined to his room for three weeks past with an attack of pneumonia, and is yet sick, though recovering.

THE SCIENCE OF MUSIC.

Professor Sternberg's Excellent Lecture on Music—Its Effect on Humanity.

A brilliant lecture on music was given last evening by Professor Sternberg at the Unitarian church. After declaring his intention to do as little violence as possible to the English language, Professor Sternberg proceeded in well-chosen terms to entrance his audience by a lucid and exhaustive explanation of his subject.

To show the power of music, the lecturer recalled the opening scene in Goethe's Faust, when the learned doctor, worn out by a life of failure, was about to take his own life, and just as he put the poison to his lips, the sound of the Easter hymn from the neighboring church reached him and renewed his love of life.

Professor Sternberg divided music into its component parts; he showed how the vibration of air causes sound and if the vibrations were irregular the result was noise, and if regular the result was music. He then showed how the human voice is the most perfect instrument of music, and by them he said are the three elements which constitute music.

The lecture was illustrated by frequent examples on the piano. In conclusion Professor Sternberg spoke of the power of music over the masses and the insane, and strongly advocated the study of science in the public schools.

The funeral exercises will occur today, and the following gentlemen have been requested to act as casket bearers: Mr. C. S. Northern, Ernest Clark, Mr. Eugene McCord, Mr. Charles Flynn, Mr. Shaw and Mr. H. McIntosh. The pallbearers will be Messrs. C. S. Little Bessie May, the sweet six-year-old daughter of Mr. R. L. Bean, was laid to rest in the vault in Westview cemetery yesterday afternoon. She was a beautiful child, and intelligent beyond her years. Her funeral yesterday was attended by many sorrowing friends of the bereaved parents, who are heart-broken over their sad loss.

The services were conducted by Rev. Dr. Dunwoody, at the residence, No. 40 Martin street, and were touchingly beautiful.

MR. REINHARDT WARM.

BECAUSE THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN GO AGAINST

A Petition for Work on the North Side After Granting One on the South Side—Mayor Glenn Issues a Veto.

"I am opposed to that kind of work. It is discrimination, and discrimination of the worst sort. If south Atlanta can get what she wants, I think north Atlanta should have just as much of the same thing."

Hon. A. M. Reinhardt was warm when he said it.

The board of aldermen was in session, and a north side petition was being snuffed under. Just before that petition was taken up, Clerk Woodward read one for sidewalks and curbing on Ira street. The common council had ordered the work, and Hon. James Woodward, the petitioner, was through the board.

The Clerk Woodward presented a paper asking for sidewalks and curbing and work on Pine street.

"That place is in a terrible fix," remarked Mr. Reinhardt, "and we should concur with the council and order it fixed. The grade is awful, and should be remedied."

"I understand," said Mayor Pro Tem Hutchison, "that that street is occupied by the Fulton County street railway track and that the cars don't use it. They should get off the street or use the track."

"I think the street car company should be made to improve the street," remarked Mr. Haas.

"Who ever heard of a street car company giving a street a grade?" said Mr. Reinhardt. "The thing that the majority of the board was against him, Reinhardt referred to the passage of the Ira street paper, and said that to grant one and refuse the other was discrimination."

The board declined to concur in the paper. Clerk Woodward presented the papers touching the new waterworks, submitted to the common council last Monday.

"I notice the rate of interest those bonds are to bear is not specified," said Mr. Middlebrooks.

"The charter is silent on that question," said Mr. Haas. "Mr. Inman wanted to make the rate four and a half, but I thought four per cent would be better, even if we had to sell at a small discount. There is no danger of a discount, however, and four will go easy."

"That paper from the waterworks committee," remarked Mr. Haas after a short silence, "does not state how much the committee can spend in advertising for bids, elections, etc. I move that we allow them seven hundred and fifty dollars."

The motion prevailed.

A petition for work on Arthur street was read.

"Where is Arthur street?" asked the mayor.

"I can tell you," said Mr. Haas, "for I furnished the land which made it. It is out in Pittsburg."

"This Arthur street is in the west part of town, near Phil Breitenbuecher," said Mr. Middlebrooks.

"I know an Arthur street in the third ward," said Mr. Woodward.

Every member of the board knew an Arthur street.

The resolution paying the tax receiver's assistant $75 a month was taken up.

"Oh, phaw!" said Mr. Woodward.

"I think he ought to get $75 a month," said Mr. Haas.

"I don't see any use in having the man," said Mr. Woodward.

The paper was concurred in.

Mayor Glenn has written another veto—a veto which kills a liquor license at 148 Marietta street.

Here is the paper:

To the Members of the General Council: At your last meeting you granted permission for the liquor license of J. H. Bryant & Co., 185 Marietta street to be transferred to John H. Tencken, agent, to which I feel compelled to enter my veto. Mr. Tencken makes the application as agent, but he does not state for whom he is agent, and the city cannot be held responsible for the faithful discharge of his duties. As he has assumed by the applicant a license is granted. In addition to this Mr. Tencken did not sign the bond required by the ordinance.

I understand that the chairman of the police committee required Mr. Tencken to furnish the bond of his principal, which he failed to do. Respectfully submitted.

ATLANTA, GA., FEBRUARY 7, 1890.

Judge Speer Decides a Notable Case.

United States Judge Emory Speer's decision in the sensational Tutty-Ward miscegenation case will be found in another column. The facts in the case, briefly stated, are these: Charles Tutty, a white citizen of Liberty county, in this state, went with Rose Ward, of that county, a woman of African descent, to the District of Columbia, where they were married. If the two had remained in that locality, where marriages between the races are legal, they would have kept out of trouble, but they returned to Liberty county, and were indicted. The defendants asked for a removal of their case to the United States court, assigning various reasons for their request. Judge Speer refused to grant the petition and remanded the case to the state court. His opinion will appear in full in another column.

It is, of course, possible that Tutty and his black sweetheart will make their escape, but it is a settled fact that they cannot reside in Georgia as man and wife. Judge Speer has made the law of the case so plain that a similar attempt to dodge the Georgia statute against such marriages will probably never be made again.

Electric Wires in England.

Electric lighting is a new thing in England, and the able scientists of that country are filling the magazines and newspapers full of valuable information and alarming warnings.

Charles W. Vincent, a recent writer in a British monthly, tells his countrymen that with the laying of overhead wires and underground conductors, people must be prepared to face perils heretofore unknown.

Mr. Vincent says that electricity is dangerous in three ways. When in great quantity, but of small intensity, it destroys by fusion conductors of insufficient capacity and semi-conductors.

Again, when it is of high intensity, it destroys insufficient or semi-conductors by disrupting or heating, or both, and frequently leaves its road, and marks out a new pathway.

Lastly, whenever electricity enters or leaves an electric conductor, by its mere presence in one, it evokes a momentary current of electricity in neighboring conductors. This is called induction.

The English authority quoted says that to make electric lighting safe we must have conducting wires of large size and great capacity and conductivity, perfect insulation, currents of low tension and installations for limited areas.

After reading this discouraging essay we cannot blame the Londoners if they protest against the new mode of lighting, especially when the fact is considered that it is proposed to send alternating currents through the streets of London at a pressure of from 10,000 to 15,000 volts.

It is all right—or will be. Steam frightened people when it was first introduced. It still destroys and kills, but we must have it. So it is with electricity. It is a necessity, and we are going to regulate it.

Major Serpa Pinto's Future.

The sudden popularity of Major Serpa Pinto, in Portugal, is perfectly natural under the circumstances.

It caused a thrill of pride to run through the Portuguese masses when this bluff soldier made a stand against the English in Africa for the rights of his country, and it is no wonder that he became a popular hero.

But Major Pinto is in danger. Because the Portuguese are cheering him, just now, it does not follow that he is cut out for a great general, statesman or leader. The probability is that we have seen him at his best—as a rough soldier who has the manhood to indulge in a little game of bluff with a superior power. Taking this view of the case, we must regret his weakness in yielding so far to his friends as to accept their call to the leadership of the republicans who now have designs against the throne.

Time and again, in many countries, the experiment has been tried of bringing a brave soldier to the front in politics, and many times the experiment has resulted disastrously. The new Portuguese leader may fail ignominiously like Boulanger, when he attempts the role of that gallant soldier and incapable politician. Even if he should succeed in overturning the monarchy he would probably be tempted to make himself military dictator. But we do not believe that the major will get to that point.

The government liked him well enough in his place out in Africa, but when he comes home to kick up a row, it will be quite another matter.

The adventurer should be prudent. He is venturing into a new and untrodden field. It may be on the cards that he will shortly be tried by a drum head court-martial, and sentenced to be shot at daybreak. Such things have happened before.

Electing Postmasters.

The New York World is openly in favor of amending the constitution so as to make postmasters elective by the people of the postoffice districts.

Besides, it is urged that the people want for a postmaster a man liked and trusted by them, without regard to his politics. In two recent instances, at Brattleboro, Vermont, and at Newtonville, Massachusetts, the republicans followed the request of their congressmen, and expressed their preference for a postmaster at the polls. In both cases they selected democrats.

The World thinks these two elections a fair test, and strongly indorses the proposed elective programme. It would be unwise to jump to a conclusion upon insufficient data. Then, too, it should not be forgotten that while federal patronage is sometimes an evil, frequent or numerous elections are always an evil. The loss of time and labor, the money wasted, the dissipation and strife resulting from many campaigns and elections cannot be estimated.

The action of the republicans of two New England towns in selecting democrats for the postoffice does not make it very clear that as a rule the people would elect their best men to that position. It was the theory of the founders of our government that the best men would be chosen in all elections, but the facts for a hundred years or more have not sustained that theory. We have our doubts about elective postmasters.

Foreigners in New York.

The New York police report is an interesting comment on the character of the foreign population of the country. In the first place there are only 80,000 arrests now against 72,000 twenty years ago, when the city had only 940,000 people. The three-quarters of a million people who have been added to the population since, are largely foreigners, yet it does not appear that they have added to the number of arrests. On the contrary, there has been a large proportional diminution in the number of crimes. It cannot be said that detection and arrest are any less certain than they were twenty years ago. A more probable inference is that the increased efficiency of the police has been one of the factors in the diminution of crime, but the difference is so large that it cannot be wholly attributed to that. The classification of criminals is significant. Of the foreigners arrested within the last quarter, 794 were Italians, 590 were Russians and Poles, 129 were Frenchmen, 50 were Hungarians, and 19 were Bohemians. The Italians who transplanted the bloody order of the mafia to this country are reckoned among the worst criminals of the metropolis.

It has been the custom to attribute to the whole of the foreign population the devilish disposition of the anarchist, but these figures show that in this, as in everything else, great injustice may be done by imputing to a class the sins of the worst individuals included in it. We should make the distinction between the socialists and the anarchists. The latter, who are very few, desire the annihilation of the state, the former, who are more numerous, have been educated by a strong government to the idea of paternalism, and have not grasped the idea of self-reliance in the citizen. The German government encourages the idea of state socialism, and it is not surprising that Germans who come over here should expect of the state more than it can provide in a free country. By degrees they will grow to the stature of citizenship. The anarchists are making no great headway, and after awhile they will die out.

Another Color Line Case.

In a certain school district in California a negro child sometime ago went to a white public school, and was not admitted.

The next step was a suit. The action of the board of education in refusing to admit the negro was sustained. Then the case went to the supreme court, and as the law was clear a mandate was issued to the school authorities to admit the negro.

The significance of the whole business is not in the decision of the court, because that was controlled by law, but in the action of the board of education which reflected public opinion. There are comparatively few negroes in California, and the matter is not of vital importance to that state. With public sentiment, however, firmly fixed it is not likely that the California negroes will go to white schools, or remain in them if they force their way in.

Indian Corn in Europe.

At the Edinburgh exposition, which opens in May, the American Indian corn exhibit will be a notable feature.

The lord provost of Edinburgh and Sir Thomas Clark, chairman of the executive committee, have taken a lively interest in making public the merits of Indian corn as food, of which they have heard so much, and know so little.

All this may strike our people as a singular thing, but it is a fact that in Europe the people have never shown the slightest disposition to touch an article of food which in this country needs no recommendation. Indeed, at the time of the great Irish famine in the forties, when the Americans sent over ship loads of provisions, as well as money, the half-starving people of Ireland did not take kindly to our corn meal. Scientific experts lectured and wrote about the matter, and gave instructions for cooking it, but it did not suit the European stomach. Many suffering people at that time refused to taste it, and they were encouraged by the better classes, who did not hesitate to say that Indian corn was unfit for food, and if eaten, would cause disease, and possibly death.

This is very interesting, not to say amusing, to the American who has eaten Johnny cake in Maine and pone bread in Texas, and yet it appears to be altogether inexplicable. It is to be hoped that at the Edinburgh exposition somebody will be present who will be able to teach the Scotchmen some of the simple secrets of our Georgia plantation cookery. If our ponies and doggers, etc., are given half a chance, they will win their way on the other side of the sea.

Attempting the Impossible.

Speaker Reed is having trouble with his new rules.

The problem which the Maine statesman is attempting to solve is one of peculiar perplexity. He desires to formulate a set of rules under which the republicans, while they hold a majority, will have every advantage, and yet he hopes to arrange them so that they will not give a democratic majority the same benefit.

Now, Speaker Reed must have heard, even in his boyhood, old sayings to the effect that it is a poor rule that won't work both ways, and that what is sauce for the goose is sauce for the gander. From these brief maxims he should have learned the hopelessness of the task before him. No cunning trick, no double-meaning words can possibly frame rules that will mean one thing under a republican majority, and another thing under a democratic majority. The English language is equal to almost anything, but it is not the adjustable, black-action concern that Speaker Reed needs for his purpose.

It is a waste of time to attempt the impossible. The speaker and his henchmen are now brought to a point where they must provide rules for the government of the house. If they try any extraordinary experiments with parliamentary law they will certainly suffer before the fun is over. The sensible thing for them to do is to frame a good working set of rules, suited to the business of the body, and in the line of time-honored precedents. Then the business of the house will proceed smoothly, and the interests of the country will have a better showing.

If Speaker Reed secures a set of bad rules, such the worse for him.

LA GRITTE in Atlanta has nearly worn out the stupid McGinty business.

THE REV. DR. WILD, of Toronto, has discovered that the Bible is against the annexation of Canada to the United States. We give up the idea, doctor.

DR. TALMAGE considerably got through with a gripe in Vienna. It was very gentlemanly in him not to worry his friends over here with it.

THE speaker of the British house of commons raises poultry. Our American speaker raises Cain.

SARAH BARNHART has a pet alligator. She should get an asp and train herself for the Cleopatra business.

EDITORIAL COMMENT.

THERE is a touch of something more than humor in the newspaper joke that a British syndicate has approached Speaker Reed with the request to name his lowest selling price for the entire country.

ALBERT S. CROOK, a Chicago lawyer, convicted of perjury in 1888, has just been pardoned. From the time of his conviction he had been allowed to remain in jail, but as he could not receive his pardon without going to prison, he was sent there for ten minutes. To the astonishment of the officials, he asked for his discharge money from the state, ten dollars, and transportation. His request was granted, but when he next asked for a new suit of citizens clothes he was at once hustled off. Having been in prison ten minutes he demanded all the privileges of an old convict.

IT is all nonsense to say that the backbone of winter is broken. It never had any backbone. It has been as limber as a wet rag from the beginning. It entered with drip, then it was grip, and next it will be skip.

IT WILL be news to the good people of Rhode Island to learn that the headquarters of the republican party in that state is within its limited domain. A voodoo doctor was sentenced to three years' imprisonment for teaching this doctrine in West Chester, and also for his failure to drive the evil spirit away from a certain county colored man home and back to their Rhode Island rendezvous.

This is a mistake. The imperial imp is getting in his work on the republican side of the house. He has telephone connection with all the republican newspaper editors.

THE newspapers are jumping on George William Curtis, for saying that dress is unfair. The Boston Herald has collected a number of opinions on the subject. Senator John Sherman says: Mr. Curtis might as well classify the whole human race as fair, or as black, as to generalization he does concerning the newspapers of the day. Substantially the same truth is contained in the remark by President Warren, of Boston university, that he finds "great newspapers like great men—particularly like the great men who make them."

THE NEW YORK Tribune tells this story about General Sherman: He was in a North Carolina town just after the close of the war, and attended church one Sunday with Andrew Johnson, who was then vice-president, and one of the other prominent men. The minister was a young Irishman, and like Peter Cartwright, he seized the opportunity to "roast the great ones of this earth over the coals." His opening prayer was short, fervid and unwhipped. He said: "O God, I thank thee for the great man who has just been elected to the office of vice-president."

"By—, that was a— good prayer."

IT is considered certain that Senator Ingalls will be re-elected by the Kansas legislature.

GENERAL SHERMAN will be seventy years old on the 8th of February. His birthday will be celebrated at his home near Central Park, New York, by a dinner at which only his family and associate commanders will be present.

INSPECTOR BRYNES says the New York police let John Most alone because they don't want to make a martyr of him. They say that is his role.

THE ST. LOUIS Globe-Democrat will erect a granite obelisk to mark the site of the best buildings, as the Globe-Democrat is one of the best papers in America.

WILLIAM B. RICHARDSON, a young Boston naturalist, has been exploring Coles, a live volcano in Mexico. From the extreme summit of the Sierra Nevada he could look down into the crater of the volcano. There were for five hours or more sounds of activity, great clouds of vapor and gas coming up with magnificent effect and rising to a tremendous height. Richardson determined to investigate nearer at hand, moved his camp to the side of the volcano, a great personal risk, pitching his tent at the upper line of pine trees and just below the lower lines of ashes and lava. The trees above had all been burned up, and it was impossible to walk in the deep bed of ashes. From the mountain Richardson and his Indian followers could hear the sounds of the volcano. One night during the eruption they could distinctly see the deep red glow of molten lava as it ran down the mountain. Richardson was regarded by the natives as phenomenally daring, but his expedition resulted in no harm to himself or his party.

"Why, darling, you can't see God. Where do you expect to see him?" "Up on Peachtree!"

Major Peyton Randolph May Resign, and if He Does, Look Out for Changes—About Sol Haas and Major Green.

Sol Haas, vice-president, traffic. W. H. Green, general superintendent, transportation. Here are the inside facts about the contemplated Richmond and Danville changes.

An official of that road high in authority, and one who knows whereof he speaks, says: "There is something in the rumors of changes in the Richmond and Danville. Major Randolph may resign his position of general manager, and if he does, you may look for this sort of an arrangement: Sol Haas will be made one of the vice-presidents, with entire charge of traffic, and Major Green will be given entire charge of the transportation department. Mind you, that is predicated on Major Randolph's resigning."

If he takes such a step, it will be because of his failing health. Nobody could stand higher with the owners of the system than he does, and it will be only because of his bad health that there will be any change at all."

"Why is not Sol Haas made general manager?"

"Mr. Haas doesn't want it. His training has been altogether in the traffic department, and in that line he hasn't a superior on earth. And Major Green deserves just as high praise, for in the transportation department he has few equals. Haas and Green would make one of the strongest teams in the country."

But will Major Randolph resign? The report that he fully expects to do so comes from Richmond, and though only a rumor is generally believed here.

"And when the official announcement of the change comes," added the official above quoted, "you will find that the official announcement reads about as I have put it."

Major Randolph Recovering.

WASHINGTON, February 6.—[Special.]—Notwithstanding the rumor to the contrary, Major Peyton Randolph has no idea of resigning his position as general manager of the Richmond and Danville. At least, this is the information given out at the headquarters of the road, here. Major Randolph has been confined to his room for three weeks past with an attack of pneumonia, and is yet sick, though recovering.

THE SCIENCE OF MUSIC.

Professor Sternberg's Excellent Lecture on Music—Its Effect on Humanity.

A brilliant lecture on music was given last evening by Professor Sternberg at the Unitarian church. After declaring his intention to do as little violence as possible to the English language, Professor Sternberg proceeded to discuss the science of music, and to show the power of music, the lecturer recalled the opening scene in Goethe's Faust, when the learned doctor, worn out by a life of failure, was about to take his own life, and just as he put the poison to his lips, the sound of the Easter hymn from the neighboring church reached him and renewed his love of life.

Professor Sternberg divided music into its component parts; he showed how the vibration of air causes sound and if the vibrations were irregular the result was noise, and if regular it was music. In conclusion, he said that harmony and by them he said are the three elements which constitute music.

The lecture was illustrated by frequent examples from the piano. In conclusion, Professor Sternberg spoke of the power of music over the masses and the insane, and strongly advocated the study of science in the public schools.

A YOUNG LADY'S DEATH.

Miss Maud Carter's Young Life Ended With Pneumonia.

There was a sad death Wednesday night. Miss Maud Carter, the daughter of Mr. J. C. Carter, had been suffering with pneumonia for some time, and in spite of the most tender nursing and the best medical attention, she passed away.

Miss Carter was nearly nineteen years of age, and a most lovable young lady, the shining center of a large circle of relatives and friends. Her untimely death is a heart-crushing blow to those who knew and loved her so well.

The funeral exercises will occur today, and the following gentlemen have been requested to act as pallbearers: Mr. C. S. North, Mr. Ernest Carter, Mr. Eugene McLeod, Mr. Charles T. M. Shaw and Mr. H. McIntosh. The pallbearers will meet at the residence of Mr. J. C. Carter, 363 Wheat street.

An Old Lady's Death.

Miss Caroline Hodge, an unmarried lady living on Rhodes street, died yesterday. She was 65 years of age. Her remains were sent to Griffin for interment yesterday afternoon.

LITTLE BESSIE BEAN'S FUNERAL.

Laid to Rest in the Vault in Westview Cemetery.

Little Bessie May, the sweet six-year-old daughter of Mr. R. L. Bean, was laid to rest in the vault in Westview cemetery yesterday afternoon. She was a beautiful child, and intelligent beyond her years. Her funeral yesterday was attended by many sorrowing friends of the bereaved parents, who are heart-broken over their sad loss.

The services were conducted by Rev. Mr. Dunwoody at the residence, No. 49 Martin street, and were touching and beautiful.

UNITED STATES COURT.

To Adjourn for the Term Some Time Next Week.

The United States, circuit and district courts will adjourn for the term some time next week, not later than the 14th.

The March term begins on the 10th of that month.

For the remainder of this term no jury business is to be transacted, the jury having been discharged some three or four days ago.

Pleading Guilty.

Five moonshiners pleaded guilty yesterday to violation of the internal revenue laws. They were William Financannon and Cicero Financannon, of Rabun county; Ransom J. Cain, of Lumpkin county; Virgil Foster, of Lumpkin; and Riley Stiles, of Union.

All are white men and the sentences were light.

MOONSHINERS ARRESTED.

Deputy Marshal George W. Grant came in yesterday with John Edwards, a revenue prisoner from White county. Edwards went jail in default of bond. A still was captured and destroyed with about fifteen hundred gallons of beer.

Deputy Marshal Cape was here yesterday after a prisoner in Fulton county, who is wanted as a witness in the cases of J. S. Burrell, G. M. Eller and E. G. Cooper, moonshiners prisoners from Towns county. The trial is to be held in Gainesville.

MR. REINHARDT WARM

BECAUSE THE BOARD OF ALDERMEN GO AGAINST

A Petition for Work on the North Side After Granting One on the South Side—Mayor Glenn Issues a Veto.

"I am opposed to that kind of work. It is discrimination, and discrimination of the worst sort. If south Atlanta can get what she wants, I think north Atlanta should have just as much of the same thing."

Hon. A. M. Reinhardt was warm when he said it.

The board of aldermen was in session, and a north side petition was being snowed under. Just before that petition was taken up, Clerk Woodward read one for sidewalks and curbing on Franklin street.

The board of aldermen was in session, and a north side petition was being snowed under. Just before that petition was taken up, Clerk Woodward read one for sidewalks and curbing on Franklin street.

"That place is in a terrible fix," remarked Mr. Reinhardt, "and we should concern with the council and order it fixed. The grade is awful, and should be remedied."

"I understand," said Mayor Pro Tem Hutchinson, "that that street is occupied by the Fulton County street railway track and that the cars don't use it. They should get off the street or use the track."

"I think the street car company should be made to improve the street," remarked Mr. Haas.

"Who ever heard of a street car company giving a street a grade," said Mr. Reinhardt. Then seeing that the majority of the board was against him Mr. Reinhardt referred to the passage of the Ira street paper, and said that to grant one and refuse the other was discrimination.

The board declined to concur in the paper. Clerk Woodward presented the papers touching the new waterworks, submitted to the common council last Monday.

"I notice the rate of interest those bonds are to bear is not specified," said Mr. Middlebrooks.

"The charter is silent on that question," said Mr. Haas. "Mr. Inman wanted to make the rate four and a half, but I thought four per cent would be better, even if we had to take a small discount. There is no danger of a discount, however, and four will go easy."

"That paper from the waterworks committee," remarked Mr. Haas after a short silence, "does not state how much the committee can spend in advertising for bids, elections, etc. I move that we allow them seven hundred and fifty dollars."

The motion prevailed.

A petition for work on Arthur street was read.

"Where is Arthur street?" asked the mayor.

"I can tell you," said Mr. Haas, "for I furnished the land which made it. It is out in Pittsburg."

"That Arthur street is in the west part of town, near Phil Breitenbacher," said Mr. Middlebrooks.

"I know an Arthur street in the third ward," said Mr. Woodward.

Every member of the board knew an Arthur street.

The resolution paying the tax receiver's assistant $75 a month was taken up.

"Oh, please," said Mr. Woodward.

"I think he ought to get $75 a month," said Mr. Haas.

"I don't see any use in having the man," said Mr. Woodward.

The paper was concurred in.

Mayor Glenn has written another veto—a veto which kills a liquor license at 148 Marietta street.

Here is the paper:

To the Members of the General Council: At your last meeting you granted permission for the liquor license of J. H. Bryant Co., 148 Marietta street to be transferred to John H. Tienken, agent, to which I feel compelled to enter my veto. Mr. Tienken makes the application as agent, but he does not state for whom he is agent, and the city is entitled to know who is the principal, and who is the agent. It is granted, and whom she can hold responsible for the faithful discharge of the obligations assumed by the applicant when a license is granted. In addition to this Mr. Tienken did not sign the bond required by the ordinance.

I understand that the chairman of the police committee required Mr. Tienken to furnish the name of his principal, which he failed to do. Respectfully submitted,

MR. HUNNICUTT'S SMILE

DEFEATS HIS OWN OPPOSITION TO BUILDING THE BRIDGE

Over the Chattahoochee River—The County
Commissioners Meet and Have a Lively
Time in Accepting Bids Yesterday.

The Missouri Valley Bridge and Iron Works, of Leavenworth, Kan., was given the contract for building the new Chattahoochee river bridge, yesterday by the board of county commissioners.

Mr. A. McGilvray, of Atlanta, the only bidder in the field, was awarded the contract for building the addition to the county courthouse.

The bridge is to cost $13,400, and the courthouse addition will be built for $15,000.

Both bids are below what the commissioners anticipated.

The new bridge is to be completed in six months from the signing of the contract, and the addition to the courthouse is to be finished by January 1, 1891.

It was expected that there would be at least one other bidder against Mr. McGilvray for the courthouse work. It was to give the expected bidder a little more time than the acceptance of bids was postponed from yesterday, but none materialized, and so the work had to go to the solitary applicant.

There was no opposition to this, but quite a breeze was stirred up over the bridge bids.
Commissioner Hunnicutt persisted in his opposition to the building of the bridge, which he has manifested ever since it was proposed.

Dr. Wilson came to his support, and for a short time it looked as though the bridge would have to go.

The awarding of the contract lay between the Missouri Valley Bridge company and the Atlanta Bridge and Axle company. The bid of the Atlanta concern was just $12 higher than that of its Kansas rival.

Atlanta wanted the work and wanted it very badly. Mr. Walker, representing their company, appeared before the board and attacked the other company's bid as illegal, as it, he claimed, did not read in accordance with the requirements of the advertised specifications.

Mr. McLouth was on hand to look after the interests of the Missouri Valley company. He said that his bid was for the bridge as called for by the county's specifications, and the board need not consider the plans presented if it saw fit.

County Attorney Thomson was called upon to pass on the legality of the bid of the Missouri Valley works. He stated that the proposition made by Mr. McLouth was perfectly valid, and if the commissioners desired they could receive it with safety.

Mr. Hunnicutt's opposition to the bridge dropped out again here. He moved to reject all the bids, and not build the bridge at all.

Mr. Garrett was for the Atlanta company, even if it did cost a little more. He moved that the bid of the Atlanta Bridge and Axle company be accepted.

There was no second, but Mr. Kiser, as a substitute, moved that the Missouri Valley company's bid be taken.

Mr. Kiser wanted one company and Mr. Garrett another. Dr. Wilson and Mr. Hunnicutt did not want either, so there was no one to second one motion or the other.

They held the key to the situation, and it tickled them, especially Mr. Kiser, who smiled. The smile was full of meaning,
and had a very decided effect upon Captain
Garrett, who sat just across the table.

Mr. Hunnicutt's smile was probably the cause of the acceptance of the Missouri Valley company's bid, and the failure of the opportunity to defeat the bridge scheme altogether.

"I won't submit to anything like this," exclaimed Mr. Garrett, when he saw the smile
of satisfaction playing upon Mr. Hunnicutt's features.

"No, sir, gentlemen, I won't stand it. Mr.
Chairman, I second Major Kiser's motion to accept the bid of the Missouri Valley Bridge and Iron works."

Chairman Adair called for the vote.
It resulted: Ayes—Kiser and Garrett; nays
—Wilson and Hunnicutt. This made it necessary for the chairman to cast the deciding vote. Colonel Adair said he wanted the bridge. He voted for Major Kiser's motion, and it was carried.

Then the five commissioners smiled in unison.

THE MASONIC TEMPLE.

The Last Lodge Acts on the Matter, and It Goes Back to the Committee.

The last lodge of Free Masons acted on the suggestion of the joint committee appointed to suggest plans for the building of a grand temple, last night.

This was Fulton lodge, and its indorsement was added to the others. This practically settles the question, as the only thing left to be done is for the committee to meet and perfect the plans and to get up drawings and specifications for the building. The lot has not been settled upon, but will probably be located at an early day.

The scheme is to issue stock in shares of $10 each, allowing every Mason in Atlanta to take one or as many shares as he may desire.

Thus this stock is payable in four installments, twenty-five per cent cash and twenty-five per cent each at the end of four, eight and twelve months. So soon as the first installment is paid the building will be begun.

It is contemplated to build a structure that will cost at least $75,000. It will be built so that the lower rooms can be rented for stores and offices, and it is calculated that the rental of these rooms will not only pay the interest on the stock, but finally the entire stock, so that every shareholder will get his money back with interest.

It will be a safe investment and a profitable one,
as the building will be located at the most convenient point available, and the corner rooms will always command a handsome rental.

In a few days the committee will meet and the full details of the scheme settled upon, and there is no doubt that it will be built during the year.
It is a remarkable fact that not a dissenting voice has been raised during the discussion of the plan.

A DELICIOUS LUNCHEON FREE.
A delicious free luncheon was served yesterday at Hunnicutt & Bellingrath's store on Peachtree street. It was a very different affair, however, from the usual free luncheon, and many well-known ladies joined the crowd and partook of the deliciously cooked viands. The entertainment was given to show the peculiar excellence of the Charter Oak stove, and every species of food was cooked in the presence of the visitors, in order to prove that delicate cake and roast meats could be cooked with equal perfection. The free lunch will be carried on daily, and everybody who cares for sumptuous fare is invited to come and see what can be accomplished by the improved Charter Oak Stove.

NOTES FROM THE CAPITOL.

Governor Gordon yesterday morning signed the documents which will restore John Edward Dickerson to liberty. Last October Dickerson pleaded guilty before the superior court of Hancock county to two indictments of assault with intent to murder, and was sentenced to serve two years for each offense. The petition for Dickerson's release showed that while he drew the pistol he hurt nobody;
that he had been fined for carrying concealed weapons, and also that he had a family who depended on him for support and who suffered greatly by his incarceration. The governor, after considering the matter, decided to commute Dickerson's sentence to the three and a half months he has served, and the payment of an additional $100 fine.

Mr. Bob Lewis was at the capitol yesterday morning for the purpose of collecting a number of pensions. He had with him a sample of mud, which was of a blue grey color, and which shell formation could easily be discerned. Mr. Lewis thought the specimen was some species of phosphate, which might be used for fertilizing purposes. In order to ascertain its value, he took himself to the agricultural department in order to have it analyzed. He was both surprised and delighted when he was informed that although his mud was not what he thought it was, it was of great commercial value.
It was pronounced identical with the clay out of which the celebrated Milwaukee bricks are manufactured. Mr. Lewis says there are immense deposits of the clay in his section.

Colonel Towers, the principal keeper of the penitentiary, was at the capitol yesterday, though he is still far from well. He complained of a pain in his side, and said that he expected to suffer a return of his complaint before he finally recovered.

Major Feute, the representative of Bartow county, was at the capitol yesterday. Before leaving he drew from the treasury the pensions of nine disabled veterans. Mr. Swint, clerk of the court of Covato county, also visited the capitol, and presented the claims of twenty-two soldiers. He received the money for twenty-one of them and the other had to be returned as the beneficiary had neglected to sign his name.

FUNERAL NOTICE.

CARTER.—The friends and acquaintances of Mr.

funeral of their daughter, Maud, from their today. Burial at Oakland.

MEETING.

I. O. O. F. Barnes Lodge.
There was no second, but Mr. Kiser, as a substitute, moved that the Missouri Valley
company's bid be taken.

Mr. Kiser wanted one company and Mr. Garrett another. Dr. Wilson and Mr. Hunnicutt
did not want either, so there was no one to second one motion or the other.

They held the key to the situation, and it
tickled them, especially Mr. Kiser, who smiled. The smile was full of meaning,
and had a very decided effect upon Captain
Garrett, who sat just across the table.

Mr. Hunnicutt's smile was probably the cause of the acceptance of the Missouri Valley
company's bid, and the failure of the opportunity
to defeat the bridge scheme altogether.

"I won't submit to anything like this," exclaimed Mr. Garrett, when he saw the smile
of satisfaction playing upon Mr. Hunnicutt's
features.

"No, sir, gentlemen, I won't stand it. Mr.
Chairman, I second Major Kiser's motion to accept the bid of the Missouri Valley Bridge and Iron works."

Chairman Adair called for the vote.
It resulted: Ayes—Kiser and Garrett; nays
—Wilson and Hunnicutt. This made it necessary for the chairman to cast the deciding vote. Colonel Adair said he wanted the bridge. He voted for Major Kiser's motion,

MEDICAL.

The Safest

AND most powerful alternative is Ayer's Sarsaparilla. Young and old are alike benefited by its use. For the eruptive diseases peculiar to children nothing else is so effective
as this medicine,
while its agreeable flavor makes it easy to administer.

"My little boy
had large scrofulous ulcers on his neck and throat from which he suffered terribly.
Two physicians attended him, but he grew continually worse under their care, and everybody expected he would die. I had heard of the remarkable cures effected by Ayer's Sarsaparilla, and decided to have my boy try it. Shortly after he began to take this medicine, the ulcers commenced healing, and, after using several bottles, he was entirely cured. He is now as healthy and strong as any boy of his age."—William F. Dougherty, Hampton, Va.

"In May last, my youngest child, fourteen months old, began to have sores gather on its head and body. We applied various simple remedies without avail. The sores increased in number and discharged copiously. A physician was called, but the sores continued to multiply until in a few months they nearly covered the child's head and body.
At last we began the use of Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a few days a marked change for the better was manifest. The sores assumed a more healthy condition, the discharges were gradually diminished, and finally ceased altogether.
The child is livelier, its skin is fresher,
and its appetite better than we have observed for months."—Frank M. Griffin, Long Point, Texas.

"The formula of Ayer's Sarsaparilla presents, for chronic diseases of almost every kind, the best remedy known to the medical world."—D. M. Wilson, Mt. D., Wiggs, Arkansas.
